KERR TO THE BAR.

The Second Trial of the Man Who Handled the Big Boodle.

Persistent Rumors that Witnesses Will Come from Canada.

Fullgraff, the Informer, Once More on the Stand.

The second trial of Thomas B. Kerr, ex-Pressurer of the Broadway Railway, and alleged bandler of the half-million boodle fund with which was purchased the favorable action of a majority of the Board of Aldermen of 1884 on the petition of Jacob Sharp's Company for the Broadway franchise, began in earnest to-day before Justice Daniels, of Buffalo, in the Extraordinary Term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

Nineteen days had been consumed in the examination of 804 citizens to find twelve intelligent, unbiassed jurors. Assistant District-Attorney Fitzgerald ened the case for the prosecution. Prior to the beginning of the address Justice Daniels dismissed talesmen not accepted for the trial of Kerr till March 21, when anfor the trial of Kerr till March 21, when another boodle case will begin. Who will then be called to the bar Col. Fellows and Me. Kenzie Semple declined to say, nor would they say whether it would be one of the ex. Aldermen or one of the railway men engaged in bribing the Aldermen.

Again the air is full of stories that one of the exiled boodlers at Montreal is coming back to New York, under promise of exemption from prosecution to testify against Kerr.

This rumor is given an especial flavor by the fact that Assistant District-Altorney Hartman is "taking a yacation" at Montreal, and stopping at the same hotel with Charley Dempssy, Sol Sayles, John Keenan and De Lacey being habitues of the place also.

Hartman would not deny in so many words that he was in Montreal to obtain the attendance in New York of one of the exiles, and said that if any of them offered to testify he would be accepted.

said that if any of them offered to testify he would be accepted.

Charley Dempsey said to an Evening World reporter that the exiles would like to put the bribers in the hole, but they did not want to assist in heaping any more punishment upon the Aldermen, who were less guilty than those who tempted them. If they could be assured that they would not be asked to testify against their friends they would return.

would return.

Col. Fellows declares that he knows nothing about the truth of these stories and raiterates that Mr. Hartman is only off for a reiterates that Mr. Hartman is only off for a rest.

In dismissing the unaccepted jurors to-day Justice Daniels took occasion to say that he wished to caution them against reading the accounts of this trial and thus forming in their own minds a bias which would disqualify them for duty as jurors on any future trial; and he declared that many intelligent and perfectly qualified jurors had lied under oath in testifying that they were biased to a point disqualifying them for the trial of Kerr.

Col. Fellows, and his assistants, Fitzgerald and McKenzie Semple, are opposed in this trial by ex-Judge Noah Davis, famous as the Judge who convicted and sentenced Boss Tweed sixteen years ago, and by John H. Bird and Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, who will be pitted against the mellifluous Col. Fellows pitted against the mellifluous Col. Fellows the final presentation of the case to the

Mr. Fitzgerald recspitulated the story of the combine of thirteen Aldermen in 1884.

"for business purposes only;" their agreement to sell themselves to the Broadway Railway Company for $500,000; the subsequent necessity for the purchase of five other Aldermen, in order to carry their measure over the veto of Mayor Edson; the meetings of this combine at the house of Alderman McLoughlin, now dead; the secret meeting of the Board of Aldermen at 9 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 30, the last day on which they could pass the franchise over the zeto, and within a few hours after the dissolution of Justice Barrett's Lyddy injunction, forbidding them to act in the matter; and, finally, the connection of Thomas B. Kerr with the boodle, which, set apart by the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad Company, lesses of the Broadway Railway, in bonds, to be used for the purchase of horses and building of a stable, was afterwards exchanged into thousand-dollar bank bills, which disappeared, by a singular coincidence, at about the same time that Fullgraff and Duffy were finah and that Farley bought a house in Grand street with thousand-dollar bails.

The stable was never built and there appears on the books of the Company entries of harness, horses and other things to about the amount of $500,000.

Thomas B. Kerr, always giving the impression of having been especially polished and groomed, sat in court with an anxious look on his round and ruddy face.

Behind him were Dr. Samuel Hall and Harrison B. Kerr, always giving the spectators were the venerable ex-Judge Fullerton and ex-Senator Ecclesine and two ladies.

Thomas B. Kerr was first tried in May, 1888, before Justice Patterson, the jury standing eight for conviction and four for sequittal.

Forshay, of the bribing railway corporation, have died; Aldermen Kenny and McLoughlin have passed to their graves; Alderman McCabe have gone to a lunatic asylum; Aldermen Jachne and O'Neill have entered on torms at Sing Sing on confession and conviction of their respective connections with the combine; Aldermen Dempsey, De Lacy and Sayles, Reading Clerk Billy Moloney and John Keenan, the go-betweens, bribe-givers and bribetakers, are fugitives in Canada and Europe.

Ex-Alderman McQuade, after serving two years at Sing Sing, is out on an order for a new trial, and he and ex-Alderman Tom Cleary will be tried at Einghamton and Saratoga respectively, while a dozen other ex-Alderman continued for the serving th

Cleary will be tried at Binghamton and Saratoga respectively, while a dozen other extended respectively. In concluding his opening to-day, Mr. Fitzgerald paid a glowing compliment to exJudge Dayis and Col. Ingersoil, and called extended respectively. The informer, to the witness stand.

Fullgraff looked much older, His long brown beard was streaked with gray and seemed ragged and disconsolate. He was very meek, almost like a whipped spaniel, and began to relate the story of the boodle combine with slowness and hesitation, his memory nerding constant jogging by Col. Fellows, to which Col. Ingersoil made frequent objection and exception.

in the London Market.

When the London cable was received this morning at the Metal Exchange in Pearl street and reported a decline of £4 a ton in spot copper in the London market since yesterday evening's figures, there was somewhat of a sensation.

Many of those who had ridiculed vesterday the idea that there was snything wrong with the big French copper syndicate are now beginning to be convinced that it is getting very near the end of its rope, if it has not reached it already.

For some time past prices have been declining, the falling off from top prices in the London market aggregating about £10 per

The reports received yesterday of the panio In the Paris Bourse over the sudden death of President Deufert-Rochereau, of the Compton d'Escompte, which is the big banking ton d'Escompte, which is the big banking house that has been all along backing the copper syndicate formed by the Société des Métaux, and the subsequent fail in the shares of the syndicate, gave rise to the belief that the final hour of the syndicate had come, and that it was on the very eve of a total collapse. Since the origin of the movement to monopolize the copper market about eighteen months ago, the syndicate has bad to take the product from all parts of the world.

The steady buying advanced prices up to their highest point, and now the syndicate has under its control 160,000 tons of copper repersesenting a capital of $60,000,000 in round numbers. As the Société des Metaux has a capital of only $2,000,000, the amount of money which has been necessary to purchase this immense stock of copper has been drawn from many sources chiefly through the efforts of the banking house of M. Deufert-Rochereau.

The opinion of all well-informed coffee men in this city is that the weight of this burden has been too great to bear already and that the syndicate, which has contracts to run for at least two years yet, will have to give it up from necessity, for it cannot raise money enough to keep on buying.

It will require about $60,000,000 more to enable the syndicate to carry out its scheme, and the prospect that it can do this is said to be very remote.

The agents of the copper syndicate in this city, Jere. Abbott & Co., of 23 Cliff street, house that has been all along backing the snd the prospect that it can do this is said to be very remote.

The agents of the copper syndicate in this city. Jere. Abbott & Co., of 23 Cliff street, decline to say anything for publication, except an emphatic denial of the suicide of M. Deufert-Rocheresu.

Mr. Mendel, a member of the Metal Exchange, said he expected to see copper down to nune cents again in a short time, and did not believe the syndicate could keep up the market much longer.

It could only do so at an enormously increased outlay, and with the public as suspicious as they are at present it would be very difficult to induce them to put money in the scheme.

The suggestion is made that perhaps the decline is the result of a fictitious bear movement on the part of the syndicate to enable them to make new contracts at lower rates. The idea is discredited, however, by the majority of dealers.

MONEY FOR THE SIMPSONS'S TRIP.

Merris Silberstein Was the Uniformed Official Who Got It.

The story in THE WORLD telling how money was collected from Castle Garden boardinghouse keepers by a uniformed official to assist in defraying the expenses of the Simpson sist in defraying the expenses of the Simpson Legion on their trip to President Harrison's inauguration, was confirmed this morning.

The official who collected the subscriptions was Recording Clerk Moritz Silberstein, a member of the Simpson Legion.

He says that on Friday last, without the knowledge or consent of Supt. Simpson, he went around among his friends and tried to get them to go with the Legion to Washington. The expenses for the trip were $25.

Mr. Silberstein denies that he solicited any money, but says some of those whom he saw made voluntary contributions of small sums of money which, taken altogether, did not exceed $27.

Mr. Simpson, who is the Superintendent of the Larding Department of Castle Garden, and the head of the Legion which bears his name, was not downtown to-day.

It is expected that the Commissioners of Emigration will investigate the matter.

Upon arrival here the prisoners will be at once arraigned before a committing magis-trate, and then the case will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

A section of the tall wooden steeple on the Pacific Street Methodist Episcopal Church in Brooklyn, was blown down at about 8

William G. Smith, of West Hoboken, was the first man called to testify.

Mr. Smith said he had heard that the policy of the Comptroller was to exclude those from the new market who were not residents of New York City, but he was afterwards told by a member of the Executive Committee of the old West Washington Market, Mr. Otis, that the Comptroller only wanted to exclude those Jerseymen who had been sub-letters.

Mr. Smith knew Mr. Woltman very well and had talked to him several times. He spoke to him at the Comptroller's office and elsewhere about securing a certain location. He bad heard marketmen talk about paying for their stands

He had heard marketmen talk about paying for their stands.

When asked to say, under cath, whether he told any one that he agreed to pay $500 to Woltman for two stands, he refused, but asserted that he never paid any money to Woltman. He also remarked that $500 would be an exorbitant price for two stands.

At the request of Mr. T. C. Kinoball, President of the Gansevoort Bank, winess went to Mr. McAdam, in the Comptroller's office, during the latter end of November last to inquire about his location. Mr. McAdam said his case had not been reached at that time. He went a few times afterwards with the same result.

He went a few times afterwards with the same result.

Mr. Kimball and another man, Mr. Mc-Mulkin, also spoke to Mr. McAdam about the witness's stand, and Mr. McAdam told them that he had got his permit the night before.

Eii Swartzschild, of the firm of Swartzschild & Sulzberger, was then examined.

He displayed a surprising innocence of the firm's business and a facility for forgetting dates. He knew nothing outside of his own sphere—the market business proper.

After a long examination it turned out that although the witness's name was Swartzschild, he was not the head of the firm, and consequently not the man who was wanted. Mr. Nicoll had been examining the wrong person.

Mr. Nicoll had been examining the wrong person.

Thomas Lowery, of Sullivan, Lowery & Co., testified that his firm held five stands in the new market, and adjoining these was one owned by Mr. Hart.

Mr. Lowery detailed the system on which his firm works. There were three members in it, Messrs. Sullivan, Murphy and himself. Mr. Sullivan and witness were in the office one day when Woltman walked in with their permits, and throwing them down on the deak, said:

desk, said:
"Boys, this should be worth something."
Woltman walked out and they talked over what he said and came to the conclusion that he meant money. Then they decided to give him $250, and one day shortly afterwards, when Woltman was walking through the market, Sullivan handed him a roll of bills amounting to $250 which he promptly needs amounting to $250 which he promptly pock-sted and walked off.

amounting to $250 which he promptly pocketed and walked off.

The next witness was a Jerseyman, Wyckoff E. Dye, and his partner. Mr. Kughler, was a Jerseyman also. They held two stands in the new market, one of which they rented from a widow. They had some difficulty in getting permits, and both spoke to the Comptroller and Chief Clerk McAdam, who said they would try to accommodate them. Mr. Mc. Adam told Kuchler that Jerseymen were not to be excluded.

Witness made an appointment with Mr. McAdam at the latter's house, He went there in the evening and Mr. McAdam was so tired that witness agreed to go back the following evening. He did so and McAdam would not promise to give him this one, but teld him to see the Comptroller in the morning. Witness went to the Comptroller in the morning. Witness went to the Comptroller's office and met Mr. McAdam there, who informed him that his stand was "all right."

He only thanked Mr. McAdam—nothing more.

A recess was then taken.

Gen. Badeau Refuses to Emasculate His Work for Any One.

Gen. Adam Badeau, is once more before the public, this time as complainant in a suit against Charles L. Webster & Co., publishers at 3 East Fourteenth street.

Gen. Badeau claims $22,500 from Webster & Co. because they failed to publish his book called "Grant in Peace" according to agree ment. The book has since been printed by another publisher.

Webster & Co. were the publishers of ' Grant's Memoirs," and when Badeau commenced the publication of a series of article through a syndicate, they sent for him and suggested their publication in book form.

An agreement was entered into by both parties on Jan. 25, 1887. By its terms Gen. Badeau was to receive $1,000 in advance, and 30 cents for each book sold. It was to contain twenty illustrations and retail at $3 s matter."

Webster & Co. promised to publish the book in the same style as "Gen. Grant's Memotrs." Everything went along smoothly for a while, when one day the General received a letter from Webster & Co. inclosing the following agreement, which the latter stipulated should be annexed to the original contract.

Nothing shall appear in said book objectiona-ble to Mrs. Gen. Grant, and the party of the first part (Badeau) shall make all necessary cor-rection and alter the matter in such a way that it will be unobjectionable to her. He shall also read all proofs and make corrections as stated in said third clause.

This he did, and the suit is the consequence.

Gen. Badeau is represented by Daniel P. Haya, of Haya & Greenbaum, and Webster & Co, by Alexander & Green.
The latter claim that the additional clause sent to Badeau was agreed upon at the time of the original contract, and that by some mistake it was omitted. They will want Gen. Badeau to show how he has lost any money on his work and whether one publisher is not as good as and whether one publisher is not as good as These names appear as the regular organizers, but when the Company is well under way the Board of Directors will be increased to forty members. No names are yet given for publication.

The new Trust Company is of course in its infancy, as the certificate must pass through the hands of the Superintendent of Banks, who will then grant a charter. This will occupy about thirty days.

On Saturday next a meeting will be held at the office of Mr. Beers, 346 Broadway, where the proposed site for the Company's offices will be considered, and probably the selection of other officers will be made.

The ground floor of the Bank of America, in Wall street, is regarded with favor, by many of the members as the place of business and will in all probability be chosen.

The sum of $1.000,000 is fixed as the capital, a small sum in comparison to the wealth represented by the members.

Arabs Make a Heavy Onslaught on German Landing Parties.

His Forces Routed.

Heavy Loss to the Attacking Party-Germans Now Intrenched.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD. ] ZANZIBAR, March &.-Reports have just een received here that there was severe fighting at Bogomoyo on Sunday last. The Arabs attacked the German landing parties furiously, crowding them at the water's edge to prevent their landing. The Arabs were finally driven off by the combined fire of the men-of-war and the fine work of the sailors and marines.

The Arabs fought desperately, never reeding an inch until the dead and dying lay all around them in large numbers,

They made no attempt at flight, though, until their chief Bushisi fell, it is thought, mortally wounded. The Germans recaptured two cannot which the natives had secured in a former pattle. No effort was made to take prisoners

The Germans are now strongly intrenched at Bogomoyo.

They will hold the place permanently, if possible, to smooth the way for Capt. Weissmann's expedition.

THIS, COUNT ?

Is There Another Countess di Montercoli in That Castle?

The Knox Family Say that Virginia Has Got a Divorce.

The Count Winged His Way to Philes delphia This Morning.

PIUTABURG, March 6.—There is no longer union of the families of Knox and Di Monercoli.

The multi-marriage knot has been severed and the Countess di Montercoli is once more Miss Virginia Knox. There has been a divorce, the lady's reis-ives say, and that she is not in the turreted eastle on the shores of the blue Mediter-They denounce the statements made yesterday by the Count as baseless fabricati

Where the lady is they will not reveal, nor will they tell on what grounds the divorce was granted. Au uncle of the Countess says that the Count has to threaten the family with sle

Count has to threaten the family with sleader suits; that he wants to be bought off, and will keep up a newspaper war until this cont is accomplished.

"He had better not come to Pittaburg." It he gentlemsn is quoted as saying. "If he does there is a large chance of his being arrested for perjury, as he swore when taking out his marrisge license that he had never been married before."

Does this mean that there is another Countess di Montercoli in the turreted castle on the blue shores, &c.

Pittaburg's best society is in a state of agitation.

The Count di Montercoli bundled up his Countly possessions this morning and left the city on the 10.30 train for Philadelphis.

He paid his bill.

He told the clerk of the Hotel di Albemarle that his destination was the Stratford Hotel. in the Quaker City.

He expected to meet some friends, he said. From there he told the clerk he intended to go to Pittsburg to visit his wife's family.

Yesterday afternoon a gentleman called on the Count, announcing himself as the legal representative of the Countess Knox-di Montarcoli.

The gentleman attempted to tell the Count representative of the Countess Knox-di Montercoli.

The gentleman attempted to tell the Count what he had to say in French.

Either the French he spoke was not the kind of French spoken by the Count or else the latter wilfully misunderstood.

Anyway the assistance of a waiter-inter-preter was called in.

He was kept busy.

The conversation was extremely animated, to say the least.

It ended thus:

Lawyer (boiling over with rage and as red as a boiled lobster)—Tell this infernal alleged Count that he is a liar.

Waiter—I don't like to tell him that. Tell him yourself.

Lawyer—I would if I could.

The trio were in the reception-room at the time, but these remarks were plainly overheard by those in the hallway.

The lawyer's perme could not be leaved.

EXIT KING MILAN.

The lawyer's name could not be learned, or would the waiter who acted as interest.

At the latter place they were joined by Mr.
Garrett's father-in-law, Mr. Frick; his brother-in-law, James S.Frick, and Messre. McKenzie, Ferguson and Lewis, Dr. Hunter, of New York, and Private Secretary Crane.
The train went via Hornellsville and Salamanca. Mrs. Garrett did not accompany her husband. She will stop at the Brevoore House in New York to-night and go to Baltimore Thurselsy.
Mr. Garrett's condition is greatly improved by his sojourn at the Miller villa at Ringwood, but he is not considered out of danger of a relapse, which may occur at any time.

DOWN ON "EXTRA WORK."

Mayor Grant gave the Quarantine Board to-day a little of his mind regarding "extra work," and !et the Commissioners thoroughly understand that he does not approve of increasing the sums of money allowed for origcreasing the sums of money allowed for original work by contract.

Mr. Hatch moved for the payment of $3,500 to John Kelly, the dock builder. The contract had been for $13,590, and the $8,500 was for extra work.

The Mayor expressed surprise at the application and said that as far as he was concerned he would insist on having such work properly advertised and contracted for.

He insisted on waiting for a complete report on the matter.

The sum of $15,000 was voted to complete the amount of $45,000 for the repairs on Swinburne and Hoffman islands. "Spring Styles."
